

I believe it would be in the best interest of the US amateur radio service if the final product of this request were consistent with the international amateur radio community.

At present, it does not appear that RM-10352 conforms to the ITU band plan. If a change is to be made, make it across the board for all at the international level and have it adopted by the ITU, then there should be little problem or conflicts of interest.

Tom Evans